How We Use Cookies

Cookies are very small text files that are stored on your computer when you visit some websites.

We use cookies to personalise content and ads, to provide social media features and to analyse our traffic. We also share information about your use of our site with our social media, advertising and analytics partners who may combine it with other information that you've provided to them or that they've collected from your use of their services.

You can disable any cookies already stored on your computer, but these may stop our website from functioning properly.

We use the following Cookie types:

Necessary Cookies: These help make a website usable by enabling basic functions such as page navigation and access to secure areas of the website. The website cannot function properly without the use of these cookies.

The following are not Strictly Necessary, but are required to provide you with the best user experience and also to tell us which pages you find most interesting (anonymously).

Statistic Cookies: These cookies (for Google Analytics) track the pages you visit and help us to understand how our website visitors interact with the website by collecting and reporting information (anonymously).

Preference Cookies: These enable a website to remember information that changes the way the website behaves or looks, like your preferred language or the region that you are in.

Marketing Cookies: These cookies are being used to track website visitors in order to display ads that are relevant and engaging for the individual user, and thereby more valuable for publishers and third party advertisers.

Unclassified Cookies: Unclassified cookies are cookies that we are in the process of classifying, together with the providers of individual cookies.

You can at any time change or withdraw your consent from the Cookie Declaration on our website.

Learn more about who we are, how you can contact us and how we process personal data in our Privacy Policy.
